Jap Fleet Returns to Guadalcanal Area

BIG NEW SEA BATTLE LOOMS FOR ISLANDS

Advancing Enemy Force Hit By U. S. Planes; Destroyer and Cruiser Blasted.

TWELVE PLANES BAGGED

Americans on Guadalcanal Continue Eastward Drive Against Landing Force.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Another large-scale battle for Guadalcanal appeared imminent today as Japanese naval forces moved into waters near the island for the first time in 10 days despite American supremacy in the skies over the Solomons

Appearance of an enemy fleet of one light cruiser and 10 destroyers 150 miles north of Guadalcanal Nov. 7 indicated that the Japs were preparing to launch an all-out attack in an attempt to regain control of the island

The navy announced that U. S. planes blasted the Jap surface force, badly damaging and possibly sinking an enemy cruiser and badly damaging a Nipponese destroyer.

In addition, five Jap float-type 'Zeros' and seven float-type biplanes were destroyed Four American planes were lost in the engagement

On the same day, U. S motor torpedoboats attacked two Japanese destroyers off Lunga point, north of the American position on Guadalcanal, and it is believed that one of the destroyers was sunk.

As a result of the loss of the cruiser, the Japanese apparently retired to their bases in the northwest Solomons.

The latest enemy losses raised to five the number of Jap ships probably sunk and to 63 the total damaged during the battle for Guadalcanal Twelve Nipponese vessels have been sunk by American forces defending the island. With the bag of nine more planes, American forces have now shot down more than 541 airships since the beginning of August.

Meanwhile, American ground units continued to advance eastward to the Metapono river, east of vital Henderson airfield Moving against recent Jap reinforcements, the U. S. troops failed to contact the main enemy force, the navy said.

Pledges, Big Ones, Greet Commandos

'Most Encouraging' War Chest Leaders Say As Offensive Opens.

War Chest Commandos — 500 strong — spread out over Mansfield today humming their theme song "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition, We'll Go Out and Get the Contributions," and they were getting them—lots of them

The Commandos scattered east, north south and west from a "zero hour" mobilization at the Madison theater this morning on a mission to make contact with 20 000 Mansfielders in "blitzkrieg" time

Early reports at War Chest headquarters were described as "most encouraging" The drive for $140 477 is more than double that of peacetime years and pledges were being doubled and more than doubled

One Commando major reported that an organization which pledged a total of $5,400 last year, pledged $11,500 for employes and management this year.

There was another instance in which a $60 pledge of a year ago was increased to $1,100 This was in a small Mansfield concern.

Individual contributions also were far greater than last year. One individual pledged $150 this year as compared to $60 last year Another increased his contribution from $5 to $100

"It's total war and we need total sacrifice," Major General Fred B. Hout reminded the Commandos at the half-hour mobilization "The boys on the fighting fronts are giving everything and certainly we can give something Let's all think about what they are sacrificing put ourselves in their shoes and then do what they would want us to do"

If Mansfield will help the Commandos will finish their offensive in three days

They will make their first report on progress of the campaign

DON'T FORGET RATIONS TASK

Thursday, Friday, Saturday Are Big Days For Those Wanting To Drive.

Just in case Mr. or Mrs. Autoist has forgotten about it all, the rationing board today reminds passenger car and motorcycle owners that they must register for basic mileage gasoline ration book "A" at Mansfield and Richland county elementary schools Thursday, Friday or Saturday.

Persons living in Mansfield whose names begin with A to G inclusive will register at the eight elementary schools from 2 to 9 p. m. Thursday. On Friday those whose last names begin with H through S will register at the same hours while on Saturday from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. those in the T-to-Z group will register.

M'Arthur Predicted Victory In North Africa, Says Friend.

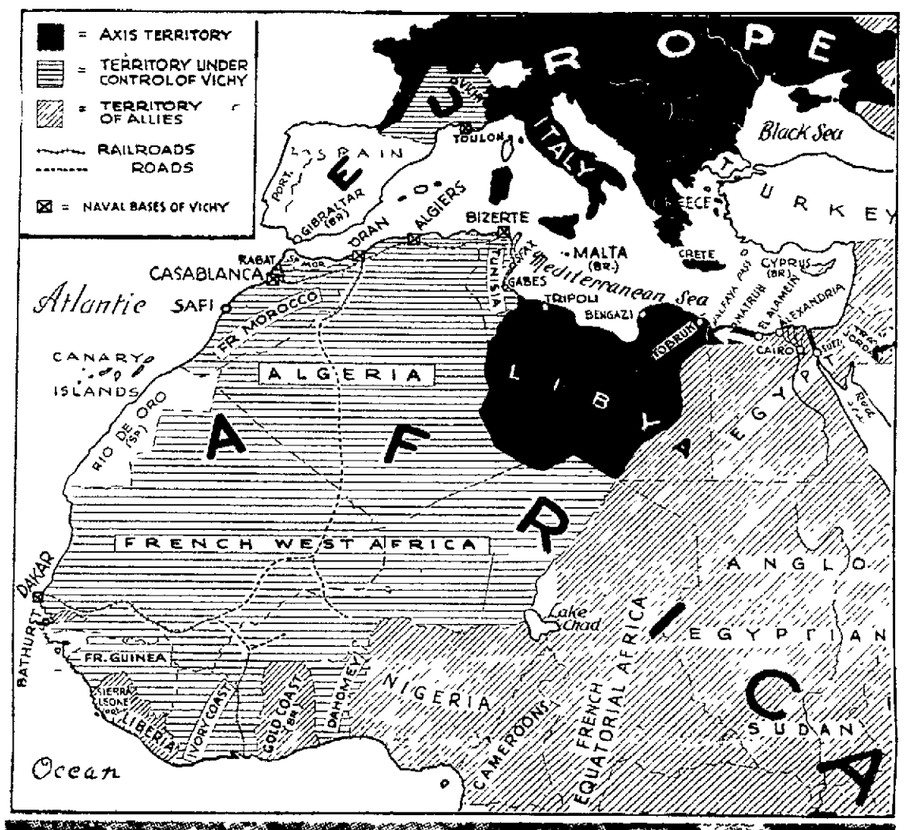
WASHINGTON — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur predicted two years ago that the European war would be won in North Africa.

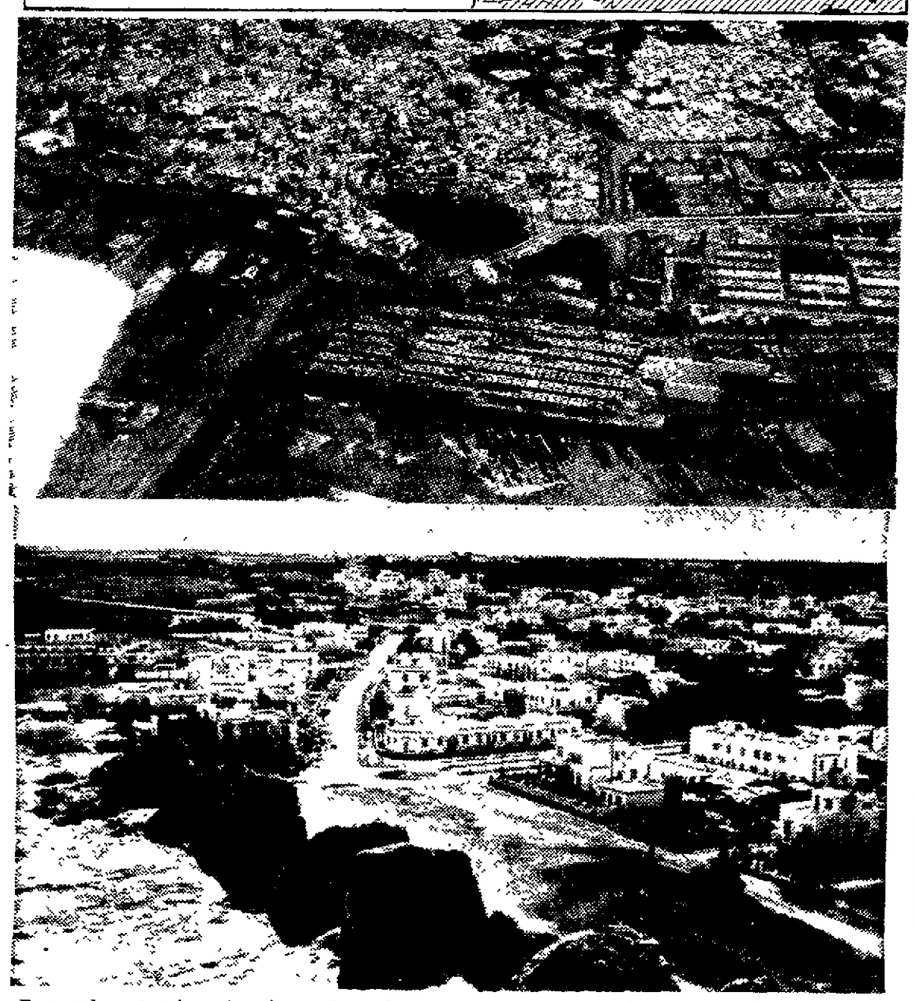
J. Weldon Jones, an assistant director of the budget, recalled today that MacArthur told him at a party in Manila, while Jones was acting high commissioner of the Philippines, that whoever controlled North Africa would win the war.

CELEBRATE DRIVE VICTORY

COLUMBUS— (INS) —Columbus War Chest workers, who by nightfall will have exceeded their $1,400 000 goal by about $200,000, will celebrate the end of their drive this morning with a victory dinner and parade.

Where Yanks Land In Africa





Principal points where American troops have landed and are attacking in French North Africa are shown on the map at top. Tens of thousands of American soldiers supported by naval and air forces, have established beachheads and advanced inland at numerous points along the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts Vichy French naval bases, including Toulon, France, where the main French fleet is reported to be, are indicated Views of two of the most important American objectives on the Atlantic coast of French Morocco are shown above. U S forces have landed a few miles from Casablanca, center, an important harbor and base. Rabat, bottom also has been attacked and reports said that Fighting French sympathizers in the town had seized the radio station there before the arrival of American forces.

Casablanca Holds Vital Role In Allied Offensive Strategy

(By Associated Press)

Casablanca, 300 miles southwest of Gibraltar on the Atlantic coast of Africa, where the French fleet has suffered heavy losses in a clash with American and British naval units and planes, is more important than much-advertised Dakar in the Allied offensive strategy.

It is linked by railroad across French North Africa with Tunis, Sfax and Gabes in Tunisia, permitting movement of troops and supplies on a submarine-proof, 1,200-mile haul from the Atlantic to those jumping off places for an attack on Rommel's rear in Libya. From Gabes, the end of the line, it is less than 200 miles along the coast to Tripoli, the chief German and Italian base in North Africa

Troops landed at Casablanca from America would have to travel less than 5,000 miles to appear on Rommel's "second front," compared with more than 12,000 miles if they went around the Cape of Good Hope to Cairo. Planes ferried across North Africa from New York have 5,000 miles less to fly than on the Brazil-Congo Khartoum-Cairo ferry route.

Troops and supplies may be convoyed to the African North Atlantic coast for a European in-

SO SORRY!

Japs Declare U. S. Invasion of Africa 'Illegal.'

WASHINGTON - (INS)— Japan, who stabbed the United States in the back at Pearl Harbor a little over 11 months ago, today feels America's invasion of French North Africa is "illegal."

The Tokyo radio, according to reports intercepted by the foreign broadcast intelligence service of the federal communications commission, yesterday told the people of Japan that "American forces have illegally started a drive in West and North Africa."

HITLER VOWS HE WILL NOT FLEE GERMANY

Promises He'll Strike Back at Americans In Africa During Beer-Hall Talk.

RECALLS '18 COLLAPSE

Explains Stalingrad Failure By Saying City 'Not Worth a Second Verdun.'

(By Associated Press)

LONDON -Adolf Hitler promised the German people last night that he would strike back at the American forces in North Africa and assured them that he would never flee Germany if the situation became difficult

The German leader speaking to his oldest Nazi party associates in Munich on the anniversary of the 1923 Munich putsch, brushed aside the smashing of his army in Egypt by the British as "an advance of a few kilometers" and declared that "those who deal out the last blow will win the war and the Germans will do that"

Hitler referred only fleetingly to the American landings in Algeria and Morocco asserting that the "last and decisive word will not be spoken by Mr Roosevelt

"We will prepare all our counter blows thoroughly as always and they will come in due time," he said

Hitler referred to the outcome of the war again and again, emphasized that he had no doubt of final victory and reminded his people that in the course of the war "absolute faith is necessary in order not to despair."

He turned gloomily to the outcome of the first World war and the flight of the kaiser to the Netherlands and promised the Germans there would be "no repetition" of the 1918 collapse.

"The kaiser was a man who did

COUNTY HEADED FOR WPB HONOR

Scrap Collection in 2 Months Amounts to 11,459.934 Pounds, Stough Says.

Richland county was in line today for a War Production board banner for collecting more than 100 pounds of scrap per person during September and October

The county, including Mansfield collected 11 459.934 pounds of scrap of all kinds in the eight-week period for a per capita average of 154 pounds, one of the best in the state said Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman

October was the biggest month so far in the collection with the Mansfield schools adding a large amount to the total in the county, Stough said. The News-Journal conducted a contest in the city's schools and Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller offered other awards for the biggest per pupil collection.

Stough said the huge pile of scrap - more than 5 700 tons of it - was collected by the WPA trucks, schools, farm organizations, Boy Scouts, and other

Algiers Falls, Vichy Navy Hit At Casablanca

American Losses Reported Slight As French Yield Many Points On Coastline, Offer Battle In Atlantic Off Morocco.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt has notified the Bey of Tunis that the American armed forces in North Africa plan to pass through French Tunisia, apparently to strike eastward toward the Axis forces now retreating from Egypt.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—United States forces, striking with overwhelming might and exquisite precision, closed today upon the key defenses of French North Africa after inflicting serious losses on the Vichy navy at Casablanca and capturing Algiers.

This powerful American challenge to Hitler, still only at its start, has been achieved with but slight United States losses, an Allied headquarters spokesman said.

Most of the resistance so far has been naval, he said, but there is no doubt that the combined might of United States and British naval strength backing up the landing operations can cope swiftly with any Vichy forces which might seek battle.

Both Axis enemies were said to have entered the defense of North Africa with air action against the Allied fleets off Algiers, but the headquarters spokesman declared there was no truth to reports that the French fleet had steamed from Toulon to enter the battle.

A German communique said that German and Italian planes had scored bomb hits on six Allied warships and four merchantmen in attacks since Friday night against British and American vessels off Algiers.

ALGIERS—French signed an armistice at 8 p. m. Sunday and occupation of the city by American troops was in progress. A British-American naval fleet steamed into the harbor. American fighter planes already were operating from the Maison Blanche and Bleda airdromes.

ORAN—American forces closed in on city from two sides; Tafaroui airdrome in U. S possession but French still reported holding La Senia airdrome.

CASABLANCA—American forces driving on town from both sides; American landings all along the southern Moroccan shores, at Mogador, 160 miles south of Casablanca, Agadir, 235 miles south, and Fedala, 25 miles northwest.

TUNISIA—No American operations reported except for isolated bombing. However, U. S. troops reported ashore at Philippeville, 200 miles east of Algiers, close to the Tunisia border.

DAKAR—No reports of American operations. Allied strategy appeared to be to cut off Dakar and force it to capitulate after isolation.

FRENCH FLEET—Reported to have steam up at Toulon but no indication that it has gone into action. Toulon fleet includes three battleships, five cruisers and many destroyers.

Rommel Flees Toward Bardia As Battle In Egypt Ends

(By United Press)

CAIRO—Marshal Erwin Rommel's broken army neared Bardia, in Libya, today in its flight from complete destruction and the British believed he might try to rally his remaining forces—25,000 to 30,000 men—there for a stand.

The battle of Egypt, a complete and smashing success for the Allies was over Rommel, who had started with 140,000 men, had less than one-fifth left, and even those were disintegrating as they fled into Italian Libya

Thirty thousand to 40 000 of his men were prisoners. Other thousands were killed or wounded and six divisions of Italians, approximately 90,000 men, were ready to be captured The Allies had destroyed at least 500 of his tanks and 900 to 1,000 of his guns (Swedish military experts believed that Rommel would hastily attempt to evacuate the remnants of his army to Europe.

(All Rommel's hope of escaping disaster have been dashed by American landings in North Africa, these experts said, and he realizes that unless he tries to escape to Europe soon, the Eighth army will be so close upon him there will be a German-Italian Dunkirk.)

The Germans tried to fight a delaying action at Matruh, in Egypt, 125 miles east of the Libyan border. United Press Staff Correspondent Henry Gorrell watched German 88 mm. and mortar batteries on the escarpment overlooking Matruh surrender, one by one. The Eighth army swamped the Germans and drove on west after the main force.

A communique of the British Middle Eastern command today confirmed battlefront dispatches of United Press correspondents that the last Axis forces holding out at Matruh capitulated yesterday.

Allied air striking forces relentlessly pursued the remnants of Rommel's army, the communique said, and continuously attacked his transport columns which were without air protection and at the mercy of Allied bombers and fighters. One fighter-bomber sortie yesterday shot up 50 trucks.

The Eighth army has collected many more prisoners, including the Italian Pavia division, the communique said.

(The London Daily Mail reported from Cairo that Rommel had less than 20,000 men left and that his tank forces were practically dissolved.)

Reports reaching Cairo yesterday said that famous Hellfire pass on the border was believed to have been partly destroyed by big bombs rained from Allied heavy and medium bombers. These reports also said enemy transport in the Bucbuc area, near the border, was so closely packed that bombers couldn't help hit it.

Six Italian divisions were milling around in the desert, waiting to be captured. They were the Trento, Trieste, Pavia, Bologna, Brescie, and Folgore divisions, the latter including some parachute troops used as infantry.

The general headquarters of the Folgore division was captured intact, and the Italians did not try to conceal their bitterness at having been abandoned by the Germans. Prisoners reached the rear in such numbers it was difficult to count them.

Asserts Victory Justifies Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Terming the Egyptian campaign a "vindication" of the lend-lease program, President Roosevelt disclosed today that $636,952,000 in military supplies had been shipped to Egypt since the beginning of lease-lend operations in 1941.

"The magnificent British victory in Egypt was aided to an important extent by the operation of the lend-lease act," the president said, in a statement, "and is an outstanding example of combined use of American and Allied resources."

The president's report was based upon figures made available to him over the week-end by lend-lease Administrator E. R. Stettinius, jr.

The major part of the military equipment, according to the president, was shipped to Egypt during the last nine months and included more than 1,000 planes, many hundreds of tanks, 20,000 trucks, and hundreds of pieces of artillery.

In making his report, the president declared:

"While we must not overlook the fact that the larger part of the equipment used in Egypt is of British origin, we have a right to be proud that so much and such excellent equipment from American factories and shipyards contributed to the victory. In particular we should be gratified by the performance of American-made tanks."

RELIEF DROPS

Only Totally Unemployable To Be On Rolls Soon, Report.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The "very near future" will leave the city relief rolls with only those who are totally unemployable, Relief Commissioner Frank G. Jones said today as he reported an 8½ per cent reduction in the relief load during October.

Only 5,263 cases received relief last month, 491 fewer than were on the rolls in September and a decrease of 4,027 cases over October of 1941.

PROBE 'IMMORALITY'

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — The Clark county grand jury will be asked to investigate reports of "widespread immorality" in the Clark county jail, Prosecutor Jerome A. Nevius asserted. He charged women prisoners were taken from their cells for the "purpose of staging immoral parties." A sheriff's deputy and two jailers have been suspended.

U. S. Picks Young Generals To Lead French-Africa Invasion

(By Associated Press)

Uncle Sam picked "young generals"—wise in the ways of modern warfare—for the African invasion assignment.

Yet, over the field commanders, is a wiry, tough soldier who made a reputation as an officer without even going into battle.

Once the secrecy of the French colonial invasion was lifted, the war department disclosed the names of the men entrusted with the important commands.

In charge of the United Nations unified command in that African theater now is 52-year-old Lieut. General Dwight David Eisenhower, a West Pointer from Texas who trained other men in this country during the first World war, demonstrated an aptitude for tank warfare and became a licensed airman at the age of 48. Yet General "Ike" never before experienced enemy gunfire, a freak of circumstances quite beyond his control.

Commanding the U. S. air forces in North Africa is Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, 45, speed flier and test pilot extraordinary, who led the flight of U. S. bombers that dropped calling cards on Tokyo in the first payment of the Pearl Harbor debt.

Fifty-seven-year-old George S Patton, a lieutenant in World war I and now a major general, is handling the armored corps on the Atlantic coast of Africa where he has plenty of geography to let loose with what army colleagues say is a mule-skinner's vocabulary. Old "blood and guts" Patton, crack tank man, does everything in an individualistic way.

Top man at Algiers when it capitulated was Major General Charles W. Ryder, 50-year-old native of Topeka, Kas., and another West Pointer.

The contingent landed at Oran was led by Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredenhall, 59-year-old army veteran from Cheyenne, Wyo. Fredenhall's flair for tactics landed him with MacArthur in the Philippines for several years, and later to a division command.

Rear Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, 55, heading the naval forces in the African offensive, has had extensive experience as commander of cruiser and destroyer squadrons.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Nov. 10.

There is excellent prospect of large and significant undertakings getting off to a good start, on this day, with public bodies, fraternal or political groups and superiors generally in a most co-operative and approving mood. It should be a time for taking advantage of such auspices for reaching high goals, especially in new directions, on bold ventures and major changes. However, any excitable or impetuous outlook may cause setbacks.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid promise for launching out on large and important deals or programs, with the hearty support and endorsement of employers, superiors and public or community co-operation. New projects, bold strokes in engineering desirable objectives, exciting ambitions all should get off to an excellent start but may be held up, delayed or postponed by impetuous, reckless, excitable and over-ardent moods or methods.

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Possibility of a joint AFL-CIO contract negotiating committee arose today as AFL building service employes ended their three-day strike at three big department stores in downtown Pittsburgh.

If successful, the joint set-up would be the first of its kind in the country. The CIO represents the clerks, furriers and clothing workers in the three stores, while the AFL has about 13 other units.

The county already has a good start in this month's scrap pile, Stough said, although there is a widespread belief that most of the scrap was picked up last month.

"We want to make a good showing in November, for it may be the last month we can do much collecting with trucks in the rural areas," the scrap chairman said. He added, however, that the campaign will be carried on through the winter on as wide a scale as the weather will permit.

'Plus' Sizes Aid Short, Not-So-Slim

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

Fall afternoon and dinner dresses in the new re-proportioned misses' sizes are offering women of medium height a range of smartly styled rayon costumes that fit without costly alterations.

No longer is the tall, slim figure considered a typical American model for ready-made clothes. The shorter, not-so-slender woman is getting long-deserved attention, thanks to the "plus" sizes based on a survey made by the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which revealed that over 40,000,000 American women are no taller than five feet three inches and average 133 pounds in weight.

Now, instead of a regular size 14, for instance, it is possible to get a 12 plus, which is shorter from shoulder to waist, but a trifle larger through the waistline and across the hips.

Styles Soft, Flattering.

This season's plus size frocks come in soft, flattering styles made of moss crepe woven with rayon yarn. The colors are varied enough to suit all tastes, including Vionnet blue, peacock blue, shocking pink, Hi-cherry, lilac, light cyclamen, lime, banana gold, beige, and deeper shades of brown, purple and black.

The lines are young and slenderizing and the trimming is simple. Many of the skirts have the new front fullness at the waistline. Shoulder line bows of self-fabric are a favorite trimming.

All the dresses shown in the above photographs follow the new figure requirements, and are smart examples of these clothes designed especially for the average American woman.

Gold, Silver Sequin Trim.

The handsome dinner gown, right, is made of fine moss crepe and rayon yarn. It has gold and silver sequins across the shoulders, a deep V neckline and front fullness in the skirt, and is in a particularly effective aqua shade.

The daytime dress, center, is a one-piece model in black with white mousseline de soie forming the lace-edged jabot and ruffled edging on the three-quarter length sleeves. It has a belt of self material and the buttons down the front closing are covered with the material.

The afternoon dress, left, is also one-piece. It is a rich gold color, and the collar and three-quarter length sleeves are trimmed with Viennese lace in a matching shade. Fabric covered buttons extend down the front.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE YOU ALL FOUR?

Though all fine players sometimes rate tactical considerations above basic rules, especially in third-hand position, they all know what they are doing if they violate the usually basic requirements for an opening bid. There really are four fundamental messages which they convey to their partners when they make a normal suit bid of one as dealer or second hand. First, they have at least about two and a half tricks in honor cards; second, at the lowest, four and a fraction playing tricks; third, a playable trump suit; fourth, protection for the lead if the partner opens that suit.

1. ♠ 9 8 4 ♥ 7 5 ♦ A Q 10 ♣ Q J 10 9 4
2. ♠ 8 7 4 ♥ 7 5 3 ♦ K 6 2 ♣ A K 5 4
3. ♠ 8 7 4 2 ♥ 6 4 3 ♦ A 10 9 ♣ A K 10
4. ♠ 8 7 4 2 ♥ A 4 2 ♦ A 10 9 ♣ A 10 4
5. ♠ J 10 4 2 ♥ A K 4 ♦ A 6 3 ♣ 7 4 3
6. ♠ K Q J 10 2 ♥ K Q 10 9 4 ♦ 8 4 ♣ 9

Each of the first four hands lacks one of the fundamentals for a thoroughly sound opening bid. No. 1 is short of high card strength, needed to support a take-out into some other declaration or back up a business double by the partner. No. 2 is shy of total playing tricks. No. 3 lacks a sound trump suit, though the hand contains 4-plus playing tricks as usually counted and enough high ones. No. 4 is not a hand on which you would want your partner to lead a spade if the opponents buy the contract ultimately; you would rather have him pick his own preferred lead in some other point.

For those who demand a sound rebid, No. 5 also would be a bad opener, as there is no good course of action if your partner answers with either red suit. There are many fine players who would open Nos. 3, 4 and 5 with 1-Club as a preference among evils, as they hate to deny the amount of strength possessed. That is not bad bridge if it is well understood that this does not necessarily guarantee a playable club suit, and in plenty of cases proves to be very profitable bridge.

Hand No. 6 practically completes the picture of the main kinds of doubtful hands. The playing strength in the majors is so great there that all experts would bid a spade on it, later showing the hearts, unless the opponents bid high in the meantime. Lack of greater high card streng th would not even make them hesitate on this one.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"They couldn't be in better shape," I told Philip Veritzen. "They are sleeping soundly, and when they awaken I'm going to have some hot coffee and a light luncheon sent up for them."

"Then I think I'll go on back to my apartment," he said with relief. "If Olga should awaken, she would wonder and worry. And by the way, Madge, she bade me ask you to run up and see her."

"Tell her I'll come over tomorrow morning," I said, then added, "providing Father doesn't have something pressing for me to do."

"Nothing that I know of now," my father said.

As Veritzen left, I had a quick intuition as to what Olga needed of me. Again I was looking, with Olga, at the queer fan letter and picture Olina had received, and which had so intrigued all three of us. The letter had said Olina might expect to see a personal ad in the newspapers; that she must show it to a government agent if she did, but if not keep it a secret.

Olga had promised to let me know as soon as Olina saw any personal, and I felt sure it was for that she wished to see me.

"I shall be much interested to know what she wants of you," my father said as the door closed. "And now I am anxious to have a look in on Redfield and Milner upstairs. Dr. Twitchell went up, I suppose?"

"Yes, and he will wait there for you."

"I won't be gone long," my father said. "Better make her lie down, Richard."

As he went out, Dicky grinned at me, after a look around the living room, from which the couch and Noel, in drugged sleep, had been carried into the bedroom.

"I was wondering just where he meant for us to lie down," he said. "Mary is on the bed, Noel on the couch. Of course I could park you beside Mary, t'other end to; or what he probably meant, I can telephone and have a cot and bedding sent up immediately."

"At this hour?" I exclaimed. "You surely are not serious. Besides, I couldn't lie down. I'm too wide awake. I must see the end of this."

"I'm afraid you won't sleep for weeks, then," my husband replied, "although Dad thinks he's now nearing his goal."

"I mean I can't lie down or sleep until Noel and Mary waken," I said impatiently.

"Granted that, but there is no rule against your sitting down and relaxing a bit, is there?" said Dicky, and put me in an easy chair, seating himself opposite me.

"Now unthink yourself," he said with a grin. "You're as tense as a violin string. Which particular item is winding you up?" he asked, "Olga's request to see you, or the glimpse you caught of old Jack tonight?"

CHAPTER XI

Dinner was exquisitely served—caviar, champagne and roast duck. But Livia did not eat much. Her problem seemed unsurmountable. Money—she must have $250 at once. But to ask the Countess for it, now seemed impossible.

"You're very quiet, Veronica," said O'Hara. Livia looked up suddenly and saw the Countess send a warning glance to the producer. She did not understand the warning it contained, but became suddenly suspicious and on her guard. What were they hatching? And how did it concern her?

The Countess was well known for her poker parties. They sometimes lasted all night. Immediately after dinner she suggested a game.

'But I don't play very well," objected Livia. This was an unexpected catastrophe. But she might win? No, you did not win when it was disaster to lose. The Countess was scooping the cards into a pile. "I haven't any money with me," said Livia desperately. The Countess dealt the cards and divided the red and blue counters each representing one dollar and five dollars.

"A check will be all right," she said. Livia flushed. She was afraid to look at O'Hara, but she knew he was watching her. All right, she would play. What difference could it make?

At 12:30 O'Hara yawned and said:

"Enough." Livia was another $150 in debt. Most of the winnings belonged to Terry Davidson, who protested when the Countess said.

"One more."

"All right just one more!" said O'Hara. Livia had the sensation of drowning in a whirlpool. But this time she won. O'Hara was delighted.

'Okay, that's enough," snapped Terry, unwillingly yielding his chips. But O'Hara now insisted on continuing the game.

"Your luck has changed," he said to Livia. "We mustn't stop now."

They continued playing for another hour. Then O'Hara called a halt. Livia was now $310 to the good. She had a violent headache.

'I'm going on deck," she told them, and swiftly mounted the brass-railed staircase. They were now anchored off Catalina, and Livia stared unseeingly at the lights shining outside the Casino, the bobbing little boats in the harbor, and the lamps on the big yachts. She was saved from disgrace, perhaps arrest. But the expected happiness did not materialize. She shivered in the night air. Livia did not hear O'Hara's soft tread behind her. But she felt his arm heavily around her shoulders.

'Don't do that," she said sharply.

'Don't be silly," he said and kissed her.

'I mean it," she said, twisting within his strong grasp. He kissed her again, then released her. It seemed as though all her nerves had been cut, and she would never feel anger, or joy, or happiness again.

You didn't fool me," said O'Hara. He grinned at her. "That about being a society girl from the east and you didn't want a job in movies." He did not tell her that he had investigated her past. No fool was O'Hara. When he went after a girl he knew all about her. Only idiots got into trouble with a girl.

"I can get you a job in pictures," he said, lighting a cigar and speaking between puffs. Livia wanted to slap his complacent face. But instead she walked quickly to her cabin and locked the door. She listened for his footsteps—but O'Hara remained on deck. There were many pretty girls in Hollywood. If you didn't get one, you got another.

In the morning Livia rose before the others were awake, took her small suitcase, and told the surprised captain she must get to the mainland. He took her there in the speedboat. She left a note for the Countess.

During the wakeful hours in the early dawn, Livia had decided she was finished absolutely with movies. What an all-around fool she had been! All she wanted now was to see Bruce and tell him so. He was real. He was kind. He was a rock against which she could lean with absolute safety and security. She wanted to marry him more than anything she had ever wanted in the wide world.

Her excitement mounted as she entered the courtyard where Bruce had his bungalow. She saw a man in the little kitchen and cried joyfully.

"Bruce." But it was the Chinese boy who came to her. "Mr. Nolan, where—"

The boy smiled. "Missy Nolan—he get married. Yes, he marry this morning—beautiful girl . . . Anything the matter Missy Clarkson?"

'Missy Nolan—and such beautiful girl" the Chinese boy repeated and laughed as though he had made a side-splitting joke. 'They coming back soon."

Livia picked up her small suitcase and fled from the bungalow. Bruce, married! Bruce, the dependable, Bruce, whom she loved desperately—now she had lost him forever. But there was no one to blame but herself.

Livia went to Hollywood House. Mrs. Sayles was going through the weekly accounts, but dropped her pen and squealed delightedly when Livia appeared, followed by a man dragging her trunk.

"This time you'll stay?" she asked—and clapped her plump palms together when Livia nodded "I have a room empty"

Livia followed her silently up to the little, white-washed room, and started unpacking while Mrs. Sayles collapsed on the bed.

"These stairs will kill me one day," she puffed cheerfully. "We ought to have an elevator."

"I want to pay a month in advance," Livia interrupted. Here's $40." She was left with a few dollars.

Mrs. Sayles painfully lifted herself to a standing position "If you have nothing to do tonight," she said at the door—"I have a couple of tickets for a movie show. Would you like to come?"

'Yes, I would," Livia was grateful. For the first time she saw the kindness in Mrs. Sayles' small blue eyes and in the lines around her mouth.

They were about to leave for the movie when Bruce telephoned.

"I'm out. I don't live here—tell him anything, but I don't want to speak to him," Livia said. She could not talk to Bruce now or ever. He would talk of his wife—or perhaps explain the circumstances of his marriage—and that would be worse.

"Miss Clarkson is not here," Mrs. Sayles told Bruce, winking broadly at Livia. "No, I didn't know she had left the hotel. All right, if I hear from her, I'll phone you." She put the receiver down. "You've quarreled?"

"No, no—but I can't see him again."

"I understand," said Mrs. Sayles, "now let's go to the movies?"

The next day was Sunday. Most of the persons living in Hollywood House worked in pictures, and on Sunday morning the rasping alarm clocks were silent, and they could sleep late. It was one of those deceptively warm spring days common to Los Angeles when the sun is bright and the foliage vividly green, and you think you do not require a coat—until you sniffle.

Livia went alone to the beach at Santa Monica. The bus was crowded with family parties, carrying picnic baskets. They seemed happy in their plans for the day. And Livia regretted she had not invited Mrs. Sayles to accompany her. But the sight and smell of the sea revived her spirits. She felt stronger and able to shape life to her pattern. She swam. The sun was hot on her face. But she shivered while dressing in the municipal shelter.

What to write about on a blue, blue Monday, after our Tygers take a 61-0 trimming from Canton McKinley?

Well, why not write about that 61-0 defeat? The whole town has been asking what happened.

Carl Graham, my special envoy to Canton's Fawcett stadium last Saturday, tells me the boys fought just as they have in other games—they didn't quit, or even give up hope. But that they lacked the usual spirit of Tyger teams. They were lost without their coach, Paul Snyder, who was sick in bed out on the farm near Mifflin.

And the few members of the team that I've talked to don't feel so badly about that beating. They firmly believe that if they had had their coach with them last week the score wouldn't have been nearly as bad as it was.

But Snyder was so sick with influenza that he couldn't stand up much less coach a football team, and the Tygers went into one of their biggest games of the season sadly unprepared.

If Canton fans are checking the McKinley and Massillon scores against Mansfield as basis for hopes of victory over Coach Elwood Kammer's Tigers, they are due for a surprise. Mansfield's Tygers say, in spite of the score, that McKinley wasn't nearly as tough as Massillon.

Somewhere I read a story recently about how Paul Brown and Red Bird used to separate the sheep from the goats and the football players from the musicians at Massillon.

Seems that the boys in Massillon were determined to get out on that football field somehow, either with the team or with the band, and there were some who tried to make both the team and the band.

Bird, watching a junior high football practice session one day was surprised to see one of his most promising musicians in a football uniform. And Brown looking at a junior high band in action discovered a neat looking halfback tooting a tuba or something.

"Tell me truthfully," said Bird to Brown, "will that musician ever be a good football player?" "He's terrible," retorted Brown, "and will that halfback ever be a good musician?" "Never in the world," said Bird. "Let's trade."

So Bird kicked the halfback out of the band and Brown dropped the musician from the football squad, and the halfback developed into a very good halfback indeed, and the musician got to be a very good musician, and everyone was happy.

GREASY NEALE HAS HEART ATTACK

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)— Earle (Greasy) Neale, coach of the National Football League Philadelphia Eagles, suffered a heart attack after yesterday's game with the New York Giants.

Neale complained of pains in his chest during the third period of the game which his team lost, 14-0. He collapsed in the dressing room later and a doctor ordered him removed to his hotel.

Add Zing To Service Grid Game

Defeated Army Loses Heavy Favorite Role.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(UP)—Navy's stunning upset of Pennsylvania, outstanding eastern football result of the week-end, had added plenty of zing to the annual Army-Navy classic at Annapolis, Nov. 28.

When the Sailors took the field against Penn at Philadelphia Saturday, few of the experts gave them a chance against the sturdy Quakers who were unbeaten previously in collegate competition. The Middies had lost to William and Mary, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Notre Dame, salvaging only victories over Virginia and Yale.

Before the Tars' 7-0 triumph over Penn and Army's 13-0 defeat by Notre Dame Saturday it seemed that Army would be a heavy favorite over Navy when they tangled in their traditional, transplanted service brawl at Annapolis. The Cadets appeared to have a much better team than the Middies. They scored four straight victories—over Lafayette, Cornell, Columbia and Harvard—before bowing to Pennsylvania.

Penn beat Army, 19-0, but a week later underdog Navy upset Penn, changing considerably the outlook for the Annapolis classic. The Middies not only licked the Quakers, but their modernized method of achieving the victory makes them a menace to the soldiers. They proved themselves masters of the airlanes against Penn, gaining 77 yards on forwards, against two for the Quakers, who completed only two in 13 tries.

True the Quakers pushed the Middies all over Franklin field, registering 15 first downs and rolling up 227 yards to 56 by rushing. But every time the Sailors were backed almost to pay dirt, they dug in and repulsed the desperate Quaker attacks. The combination of these magnificent stands, their tight air defense and their excellent passing attack—with Plebe Ben Martin usually on the receiving end—resulted in victory.

Navy has improved remarkably since the start of the season, when Commander John "Billick" Whelchel, who preferred a battlewagon, found himself grooming one of the greenest squads in academy history. Of five letter men, only two were seasoned first-stringers.

Navy meets comparatively weak Columbia Saturday and then can spend two weeks sharpening for Army. Meanwhile the Cadets tangle with Virginia Tech and Princeton.

When the future generals and admirals take the field at Annapolis on the 28th betting should be tight and heavy because the teams now seem well matched.

Bears Battle Green Bay

Brawl Looms as Tossup Between Two Clubs.

(By United Press)

The Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers collide at Wrigley field next Sunday in the National Professional Football league's "game of the season" and today the brawl loomed as a tossup on the basis of the teams' records.

The Bears, pointing for their third consecutive football title, have won seven in a row without a defeat to pace the Western division. The Packers, after an early defeat by the champions, came along fast to compile a record of six victories in seven starts to remain in the runner-up spot, one game off the pace.

If the Bears win, they are virtually certain to meet Washington's Redskins who have sewed up the eastern division title with seven wins against one defeat and need only one triumph in their remaining three games to clinch the crown. A Packer victory would repeat last years performance when Green Bay forced a playoff, by tying with the Bears, and then bowed in the playoff game.

The Packers led by their touchdown twins, Cecil Isbell and Don Hutson, smashed the Rams, 30-12 before 16,000 fans at Cleveland Sunday as the Bears hammered out a 35-0 triumph over the Dodgers before a throng of 31,643 fans—Largest gathering to watch a pro football game in New York.

Hutson broke three of his own individual league scoring records. He caught three scoring passes and kicked three extra points—smashing the season mark for touchdown passes caught with 10, total points in one season, 95, and total touchdowns in one season, 12.

The Bears ran their winning string to 20 games, 14 in league competition, by burying the Dodgers. Chicago's combine clicked for a pair of touchdowns in the first period and one each in the last three.

The Redskins rolled over the Chicago Cardinals, 28-0, before a crowd of 35,425 fans at Washington. Sammy Baugh's brilliant passing accounted for three of the Redskins' touchdowns.

Pittsburgh came from behind to hand the Lions their eighth straight defeat, 35-7, before 16,675 fans at Detroit.

Draw Heaviest Series Fines

The severest penalties ever meted out by baseball's high commissioner, K. M. Landis, for a World series altercation have been assessed against Frankie Crosetti, left above, and Joe Gordon, right, of the New York Yankees. Crosetti was fined $250 and suspended for 30 days, effective the first day of the 1943 season; Gordon was fined $250. Both clashes occurred in the third game of the series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Penn Defeat By Navy Takes First Place In Upset League

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK —(INS)— Football's four horsemen of the Apocalypse, who apparently can survive all the horrors represented in their Biblical background — Boston college, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Tulsa—romped on to further glory on the gridiron Saturday but in their wake came another wave of form upsets which drowned no less than a dozen favorites in other parts of the country.

Biggest explosions of the day saw Penn fall before a supposedly weak Navy club, Wisconsin, one of the nation's leaders, humiliated by a fighting Iowa team, California's Bears claws clipped by the hot and cold Trojans of Southern California and the Rose Bowl hopefuls of U C L A rudely shocked by Oregon's Webfeet.

Before combing the ruins for explanations, alibis and a look at what to order in the way of crying towels next week-end we find the following clubs leading a stumbling parade in various sections of the country.

East: Boston college.
Midwest: Ohio State, Michigan, Notre Dame.
South: Georgia and Georgia Tech.
Southwest: Texas and Texas A. and M.
Missouri valley: Tulsa.
Far west: Washington State.

The quartet of upsets mentioned above represents only a few of the screwy happenings which continued to torment so-called football experts all over the nation. Other under-dogs who chewed up fat, favored teams included Indians over Minnesota; Cornell over Yale, L S U. over Fordham; Brown over Holy Cross, Dartmouth over Princeton, Standard over Washington, Texas Tech over Texas Christian and Mississippi State over Tulane.

The biggest game in the east saw a fighting, but over-anxious Army team defeated by Notre Dame, 13-0, before about 75,000 at the Yankee Stadium. The score should have been 7-0 for the Irish's final touchdown, on a fluke pass in the last 20 seconds of play, was distinctly a freak. Army would have made a game of it and would have made a game of it and would have gotten no worse than a tie if it had passed instead of trying to shake crippled Hank Mazur and Ralph Hill loose all afternoon.

Notre Dame will have to improve considerably on the ground if they expect to get past Michigan next Saturday.

Heroes of the week in this sector were the gallant midshipmen of Navy. Rated one of the poorest clubs in Annapolis history, the Middies scored one of the big upsets of the wild and woolly season.

Shackled on the ground, the Navy went into the air and, on three completed passes mixed with a few runs, scored, kicked the point and then fought off drive after drive of the superior Penn backfield to win 7-0.

The Middies will next entertain a disappointed Columbia eleven which despite the magnificent work of Paul Governali, its one-man football team, bowed to Colgate, 35 to 26, in a track meet billed as a football game. Penn's next will be Penn State, which outlasted Syracuse, 18-13, in another high-scoring game.

The poor Fordham Rams, after taking an early 7-0 lead, watched Louisiana State, led by a sub halfback named Slucer Harris, explode for four last-half touchdowns and a 26-13 triumph. This didn't make the Rams' next encounter with big and burly Boston college look too inviting. The Eagles had a workout with Temple, 28-0.

The other big games in the midwest Saturday will find Iowa and Minnesota, which was upset 7-0 on Indiana Billy Hillenbrand's pass to Right End Pete Pihos in the final three and a half minutes of play, meeting at Minneapolis. Ohio State, which routed Pittsburgh, 59-19, meets Illinois, which rammed Northwestern 14-7, at Cleveland.

In the southland Georgia Tech's mighty unbeaten Engineers which swamped Kentucky, 47-7 will face the severe test of the Alabama Crimson Tide which warmed up with a 29-0 victory over South Carolina. Georgia's Bulldogs, who ran wild to a 75-0 conquest of Florida, have another breather carded with Centre.

The amazing Tulsa U club was finally scored on as it walloped Oklahoma A. and M., 34-6, but just about ran the Missouri valley conference championship flag up its flagpole. They will next meet Baylor of the southwest in a game which should provide a good comparison of intersectional power.

Texas, apparently beset in the southwest, trimmed Baylor 20-0, and next meets T C U upset by Texas Tech, 13-6. Rice, which ran away and hid from weak Arkansas, 40-9, will undoubtedly have more trouble with the Texas Aggies, which beat out Southern Methodist, 27-20, in a furious passing carnival.

Biggest form reversals on the west coast saw Oregon, which has never lost to the Uncians on its home grounds, uphold tradition with a 14-7 triumph and U. S. C. rise again, after a couple of dull weeks, to trim California's highly favored Bears, 21-7.

* * *

Stanford's up-and-down Indians were up again to scalp Washington 20-7 while Washington State was walloping Michigan State, 25-13, in an intersectional game.

Week-end menu for the coast will feature: Southern California-Oregon and Washington-California Pre-Flight battles.

Brown Looks For Halfback

Injuries To Frye and Cleary Creates Problem.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State, back in the thick of a three-way battle for first place in the western conference title chase, today faced a right halfback problem.

Bob Frye of Crestline and Tom Cleary of Cleveland, two of the Bucks' leading substitutes at that position, were injured in Saturday's 59 to 19 rout of Pittsburgh. Frye has a broken leg. Clearly fractured a small wrist bone.

Leslie Horvath, 160-pounder from Cleveland, plays the right halfback spot regularly, but Coach Paul Brown said, Horvath takes such a beating and he's not rugged enough to go it at top speed the whole route."

"I don't know what we'll do for right halfbacks next week," Brown said as he and his assistants discussed their plans for beating Illinois in a game to be played in Cleveland stadium before an anticipated crowd of 65,000 to 75,000.

Ohio Illinois and Iowa are tied for the conference leadership.

While Brown tried to find a solution to the right halfback problem there was considerable talk he might shift George Slusser of Massillon to that spot from left halfback.

Slusser saw more action than any other player as Brown used all but three members of his squad against the Panthers. Slusser's accurate passing won him the praise of Pitt Coach Charley Bowser.

Brown has six other players on the casualty list. Halfback Paul Selby of Columbus has a bad ankle, Tackle Bob McCormick of Columbus an injured wrist, Ed Dante Lavelli of Hudson an ailing knee, End Bill Sedor of Shadyside a wrenched knee, and halfback Bill Durtschi of Galion and Tackle William Willis of Columbus have lame legs.

INSTRUCTS MEN

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — (INS) —Thousands of women are being taught war work by skilled men mechanics, but Sarah Trotsky, employed in one of General Electric's New England plants, has reversed the process—she instructs men in the operation of complex milling machines.

The machine turns out precision parts for various war products.

Big Ten Title Race Unsettled

So Are Southeastern And Coast Contests.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—You could put your finger on a front runner in eastern, southwest and Missouri Valley grid sectors, but after what happened Saturday it may take the rest of the season to pick champions in such major conferences as the Big Ten, Southeastern and Pacific Coast.

In the east, bowl-bound Boston College stood out like a sheet in a breeze following its 28-0 victory over Temple and had only three lightly regarded opponents between it and an all-victorious season.

The Eagles will go to work on the first of that trio Saturday when they tangle with Fordham, 26-13 loser to Louisiana State.

A couple of big little eastern teams, Williams and Amherst, both unbeaten and untied, meet Saturday. Navy, a surprise 7-0 winner over Pennsylvania, meets Columbia in an eastern headliner while Princeton faces Yale, Brown humps into Harvard and Penn tackles Penn State.

Army, blanked 13-0 by Notre Dame, will attempt to halt a two-game losing streak against Virginia Tech. Cornell plays Dartmouth and Colgate meets Syracuse.

Georgia and Georgia Tech, both unbeaten and untied, share the southeastern spotlight and may have to wait until their tussle, Nov. 28, to settle the conference title.

Georgia Tech, which blasted Kentucky, 47-7, faces a tough opponent in Alabama this week, while Georgia, 75-0 victor over Florida, goes after more of the same against Chattanooga.

William and Mary, the Southern Conference leader, takes on V. M. I. and Duke meets North Carolina in another loop tilt.

In the Big Ten, where all is confusion after Wisconsin's 6-0 upset by Iowa, some clarification may be accomplished this week when Ohio State and Illinois collide.

Iowa bangs into Minnesota which was upset by Indiana, 7-0, while Wisconsin tries a comeback against Northwestern. Michigan, intersectional winner over Harvard, 35-7, meets Notre Dame.

In the southwest, Texas took over the lead with a 20-0 triumph over Baylor but runs into a T. C. U. team smarting under two straight defeats.

The Pacific Coast conference finds Washington State back in the lead after Oregon upset U C L A., 14-7.

Missouri, the Big Six leader by virtue of a 26-6 win over Nebraska, faces its last tough hurdle in Oklahoma, which crushed Kansas State, 76-0.

After mopping up everything in sight in the Missouri Valley loop, unbeaten-untied Tulsa takes on Baylor of the southwest for its toughest test of the season.

CLEANING THE CUFF

Cleveland, once a basketball hotspot, is trying to line up a Great Lakes-Ohio State, Wyoming-Western Reserve court double-header for Jan. 2 . . . While Ohio State grid fans are getting excited about sophomore Gene Fekete, the folks at Athens, O., merely ask if he's as good as his brother John, who does a whale of a job of halfbacking for Ohio university.

Stars Picked In Ohio Tilts

Dayton Halfback Runs 70 Yards For Touchdown.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Ohio's glittering grid stars of last week-end.

Halfback Lou Priske of Dayton, who raced 70 yards in the last 20 seconds of Dayton's game with Chattanooga to give the Flyers a 14-12 win over the Southerners.

Sophomore Bill Williams of Cincinnati's Bearcats passed 40 yards to Quarterback Joe Babcock for Cincinnati's first score and uncorked a 15-yard pass to Bob Creevy for the Cincinnatians' second tally as they fell before Tennessee 34-12.

Virgil McNulty of Rio Grande, a 170-pound junior, who tallied 13 points for the Rios to set a scoring record for the lads from Gallia county—the largest score they have piled up in a single game since 1935. Rio lost to Marietta 24-13.

Jack Yager of Antwerp, Defiance halfback, scored one touchdown and passed to Craig Dowler of Toledo for two more as Defiance walloped Bluffton 20-12. Norman Beidler, Bluffton sophomore, intercepted one of Yager's passes and raced 90 yards for a Bluffton score.

Capt. Paul Herrick, playing his last game for Kenyon college, tossed a 10 yard pass to End Pierce McLeod that was good for the Lords' 7-0 victory over previously unbeaten Wabash.

Paul Devine, Bob Arnold and Dick Winter—all freshman substitute backfield men—scored four of Heidelberg's eight touchdowns to lead the Student Princes to a 52-0 victory over Elmhurst (Ill.) college.

Bill Holford, senior Otterbein tackle from Dayton, tackled Halfback Louis Roeble of Lima behind Findlay's goal line for the two point margin of Otterbein's 8-6 victory over Findlay.

Danny Marazon, Bowling Green star, pitched a 16 yard pass to Wayne Bordner for a touchdown and Peter Popovich kicked a field goal from the 18 yard line to give the Bee Gees a 10-0 victory over Wittenberg.

Jay Lehman, Wooster backfield ace, plunged four yards for a touchdown and passed for two others as Wooster trounced Denison 26-0.

Charley Heck, Ohio Northern's junior letterman from Carey, completed five out of seven passes, two of them for touchdowns, and scored another tally himself as the Polar Bears rolled over Mount Union 28-0.

Sparky Adams, Baldwin Wallace's deadly passer, completed 11 aerials in 22 tries, two of them good for touchdowns and another setting up a third score, and kicked three extra points in four tries as B-W whipped [illegible] 27-12.

* * *

The terrific toe of Scott Siders, halfback from Cincinnati, gave Miami a 28-25 victory over its old rival, Ohio Wesleyan. Siders kicked all four of Miami's extra points.

Dayton Club Holds Top Rank

Flyers Risk State Honors Against Cincinnati.

By JOHN H. COLBURN

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Dayton's claim for state-wide collegiate football honors goes on the block Saturday against potent Cincinnati as Ohio Northern gets a chance to become undisputed champion of the Ohio conference.

With Ohio State's powerful Bucks excluded from consideration, the University of Dayton Flyers ranked today as Ohio's most powerful eleven. The Flyers in winning seven games against a single loss have chalked up 170 points while holding the opposition to 74.

Cincinnati's Bearcats have lost only two games in seven starts while scoring 147 points to their opponents' 83.

Both teams lost to strong Tennessee by nearly identical scores, so the tilt to be waged on Cincinnati's homelot appears to be a toss-up. Tennessee beat Dayton 34 to 6 and Cincinnati 34 to 12. Cincinnati's only other defeat came at the hands of Georgia.

Powerful Ohio Northern holds the conference lead without dispute and can annex the title by beating Heidelberg at Ada Saturday. Should the Polar Bears lose, John Carroll would become conference champion although it has completed its league season.

Northern, with a conference record of four wins and a tie, appears to have an edge over the Student Princes, who have split even in four contests.

Six of Ohio's 34 football-playing colleges wound up their season last Saturday and 11 more complete their schedules this week. Little Marietta with a two-game schedule finished as Ohio's only unbeaten team. The Pioneers won both games from weak Rio Grande.

Rio Grande, Marietta, Kenyon, Defiance, Hiram and Bluffton have put away their football togs. Those teams playing their final season games Saturday are: Findlay, Mount Union, Muskingum, Otterbein, Capital, Ohio Northern, Heidelberg, Youngstown, Kent State, Oberlin and Baldwin Wallace.

This week's football card Friday—Bowling Green at Findlay (afternoon), Bucknell at Case (night). Saturday—Ohio State-Illinois at Cleveland; Wooster at Oberlin; Heidelberg at Ohio Northern, Mount Union at Muskingum; Otterbein at Capital, Toledo at Youngstown, Dayton at Cincinnati, Lane College at Wilberforce; Ohio Wesleyan at Boston, Washington and Jefferson at Denison; Wright-Patterson at Wittenberg; Kent State at Akron; Xavier at Ohio University, Miami at Western Reserve, Grosse Ile at Baldwin Wallace.

Hershey escaped a shut-out at the hands of Buffalo when Smith sank a goal in the third period on passes from Hergert and Moe. Buffalo registered two goals in the first, added another in the second and two more in the third.

* * *

An overtime goal by Brown put Washington ahead for a brief moment but Shack tied it up for New Haven at the 6.15 mark on passes from Miles and N. Smith.

PLEDGES, BIG ONES, GREET COMMANDOS

'Most Encouraging,' Say War Chest Leaders as Offensive Gets Under Way.

Wednesday night at Central park immediately after the Armistice night parade. They're aiming at reporting "the objective taken" at that time.

They want to contact all of the 20,000 persons in factories, business places and homes today, reserving Tuesday and Wednesday for "call-backs"—reaching persons not available on their first call.

The Commandos got another look at the cause they are working for during the mobilization this morning. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts paraded across the theater stage carrying placards bearing the names of each agency.

As a finale, the scouts were lined up on the stage with little Diana Hayworth, dressed like the little girl on the War Chest poster, standing in the center. Diana bears a striking resemblance to the girl on the posters which line downtown streets carrying the appeal "For home and country—give an hour's pay each month."

P. W. Endriss who composed the Commando theme song led a mass singing of that number. J. C. Baird, chairman of publicity, presided.

DON'T FORGET RATIONS TASK

Thursday, Friday, Saturday Are Big Days For Those Wanting To Drive.

week is for "A" and "D" ration books only.

Hours for registration at the county rural and village schools generally will be from 4 to 8:30 p. m. on Thursday and Friday.

Volunteers who will assist in the registration of "B" and "C" applicants will have an instruction school at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the John Simpson Junior high school auditorium.

Information for war workers in munitions plants where certain data is being gathered by plant transportation committees will be available tomorrow or Wednesday, according to W. J. Spreng, chairman of the gasoline panel of the rationing board.

With gas rationing problems fairly well ironed out, Ray Hout, county civilian defense chairman, today announced the appointment of Attorney James L. Eberly as chief of a service corps and war service committee which will arrange rationing instruction schools throughout the county.

Eberly's first task will be to divide the villages into blocks in which instruction sessions will be conducted to inform the public of rationing programs and the necessity of full cooperation with the home defense effort, Hout said.

The schools of instruction will get under way Nov. 23 and are expected to complete their work by Dec. 1. One of the first problems Eberly will take up will be that of voluntary meat rationing scheduled to begin soon.

Working with the county farm extension office, the defense organization will be able to contact every resident of the county within an hour when it is necessary to distribute urgent information, Hout said.

The county agent's office has had community "key members" in all parts of the county for several weeks who have aided in getting information to farm residents.

Instructors in the schools to be inaugurated Nov. 23 will be named by Mrs. W. B. Ford, Mansfield, who is nutrition chairman for the county organization.

REPORTS FEWER FEEDER CATTLE

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio and Michigan had 30 per cent fewer cattle in feedlots for finishing between July and October than last year, L. P. McCann, animal husbandry expert at Ohio State university, reported.

McCann said uncertainty about future prices for fat cattle and a farm labor shortage probably accounted for the decrease. He predicted that the carry-over of long-fed cattle this winter would be less than for 1941.

SCRAP SUPPLY IMPROVEMENT CHEERS STEEL

Mills Bolstered By Latest Collection of Metal, Magazine Reports.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks added fractions to last week's war rally in today's early market transactions.

At an active opening gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Chrysler, Goodrich and Sears Roebuck.

Encouraging to holders of steels was the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that improvement in the current scrap supply was a bolstering influence for mills.

Attention was given oil company shares as the bureau of mines announced its estimate that, at the end of October, stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum amounted to 239,266,000 barrels, an increase in the final week of the month of 1,289,000 barrels.

HITLER VOWS COUNTER BLOWS

Promises He Won't Flee From Germany During Munich Beer-Hall Speech.

not have the strength to see things through," Hitler said. "In me, however, Germany has a man who simply does not know the word capitulation."

Hitler declared he had made his last peace offer in 1940 and said "We know the fate that awaits us if we lose and it is for this reason that we have not the remotest idea of compromise."

He explained his failure to take Stalingrad with the declaration that it was "not worth a second Verdun. The important thing is that no ship can come up the Volga."

It isn't possible, he said, to achieve successes every week.

Referring to the smashing RAF blows against German cities, Hitler said "the moment will come when the enemy will find out that Germany's inventive genius has not been asleep. The enemy will receive such a reply that he will be overwhelmed and stupefied."

Soviets Repulse New Nazi Stalingrad Push

MOSCOW—(INS)—Soviet troops repulsed a new Nazi attack in the factory area of Stalingrad, and wiped out two enemy infantry platoons northwest of the Volga City, the Red army's noon communique announced today.

Southeast of Nalchik, in the Caucasus, the Soviets pushed back an enemy attack supported by tanks.

After reporting continued fighting northeast of Tuapse, on the Black sea, the communique said there were no changes on the other fronts.

An earlier statement by the Red high command, describing Sunday's operations, said that active fighting had been confined to Stalingrad, around Tuapse and southeast of Nalchik.

Then it revealed that during the past week the Soviets had destroyed 158 enemy planes against a loss of only 63 of their own. As for naval operations, it said:

"Our warships in the Baltic sea sank two enemy transports, totalling 12,000 tons."

"Northeast of Tuapse, several counter-attacks were repulsed, and the enemy losses were heavy. In one sector the enemy penetrated an inhabited locality, but our troops counter-attacked and dislodged the enemy from the village."

U. S. Fortresses Hit Two French Areas

LONDON —(INS)— Reappearance of American Flying Fortresses over Occupied Europe in daylight raids served warning on the Axis today that the expansion of the Allied offensive to Africa would mean no reduction in the scope and power of the aerial second front in the west.

The American air corps attacked in great force at Lille and Abbeville in France as indicated by the fact that more than 300 Spitfire fighters accompanied the Fortress squadrons. Allied losses were one Fortress and six Spitfires.

This daylight smash Sunday followed the early morning raid on Genoa by the largest force of RAF bombers yet sent over Italy. Coastal observers reported that the outgoing squadrons of Stirlings, Halifaxes and Lancasters—Britain's largest and deadliest bombers—roared over the channel coast for more than an hour. It was the second raid in two nights on the north Italian port.

The reported losses of four bombers indicated a force of 100 planes.

NO SHORTAGE IN COINS YET

Mansfield Not Hit as Hard as Some Places; 'Piggy' Banks Intact So Far.

Mansfielders will not be called upon to scrap their "piggy" banks or raid their small coin collections for the present at least as the shortage of small change that prevails in some sections has not been noticed here to any great extent.

Surplus change is shipped from Mansfield banks to the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland almost every week, bankers pointed out. "Parking meters here keep change in circulation," C. F. Fighter, secretary-treasurer of the Richland Trust company said, adding that there was an excess of pennies and nickels.

Reiterating the opinion of Fighter, C. W. Marks, assistant cashier of the Citizens National Bank, reported that there was no shortage of small coins in that bank. "We have a big supply of coins," he said, "enough for our own use and to supply other financial institutions here. We have been asked by the Federal Reserve Board to limit our orders for new bills, however, as the government printing presses are kept busy issuing bonds."

Owing to the nature of business done by the Citizens Bank, Marks explained that they usually had a surplus amount of small coins but suggested that the surplus might not be as great as in previous months when shipments were made to the Federal Reserve Bank at more frequent intervals.

Edward Arnold, going into "The Youngest Profession" after his bond-selling tour, is almost entirely paunchless—another proof of same.

Jane Wyman, back from her bond-selling through East and South, left something like a million dollars' worth of costume jewelry behind her — a million dollars figured in bond orders it brought as she auctioned the pieces in various cities. Total cost to the star, as she figures it on the set of "Forty Whacks," was $14.50. . . .

House Nears Test Vote on 18-19 Draft

THREE OHIOANS FAVORED IN GOP LISTS FOR '44

Bricker, Taft, Burton Watched as Possibilities For Presidential Timber.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—It looks as if three Ohioans will be in the lists for the Republican presidential nomination.

There are two years to go but the names Bricker, Taft and Burton are among the big ones expected to figure prominently in the balloting at the national convention in 1944. The election made this emphatic.

Which will have the better chance depends, like everything else, on the war.

In any event, Republican leaders, confident that successes in last Tuesday's election foretold gaining party strength during the next two years, are going to measure the qualifications and vote-getting ability of these three men of Ohio.

Personable Gov. John W. Bricker's tremendous victory over former Rep. John McSweeney stamped him definitely as a presidential possibility.

Bricker was a strong prospect at the last convention but he stepped aside in favor of Sen. Robert A. Taft who hoped to follow in the footsteps of his illustrious father, former president and Chief Justice William Howard Taft.

There is nothing to indicate that Taft won't be in the running. He came close to winning the nomination in 1940, until the delegates leaped on the Willkie bandwagon.

Taft is an astute, experienced legislator with ability that is recognized even by political opponents. A trend back to conservatism would enhance his prospects and some leaders forecast such a trend.

The political limelight spotted Senator Harold H. Burton several months ago when he addressed the party convention in Maine. Some commentators labeled his remarks as a pattern for Republican platforms of the future. He said Tuesday's vote indicated that the people wanted "a return to constitutional government" and better conduct of the war.

Burton showed strength by his election to the senate at a time when Republican followers were not so plentiful.

FILE NEW RENT PROBE PROTEST

Representatives of 15 Labor Unions Send Letters To Murray, Green.

Representatives of 15 Mansfield labor unions at a meeting Saturday night carried their protest against the appointment of LeRoy B. Hamilton as Mansfield area rent control director to the heads of the national CIO and A. F. of L organizations. The unions previously had protested to the Office of Price administration in Cleveland which made the appointment.

Charging that the OPA "flagrantly outraged the usual procedure in the appointment of the area rent administrator," heads of the two labor organizations in Richland county mailed letters of protest to Philip Murray, CIO president, and William Green, head of the A. F. of L.

The letters said Hamilton's appointment was made "in violation of three imperatives:

"It was made without the endorsement of labor; the appointee was a former 36 per cent a year loan company official and a former realtor which contravenes the official qualifications of the position, and the appointment is not acceptable to the community at large and therefore will not be conducive to community-wide cooperation."

The letters were signed by John Gross, president of the Richland county industrial union council, a CIO affiliate, and Clarence D. Fike, president of the Richland county Federation of Labor.

Probe Wrecking Of War Material Train In Ohio

FREMONT—(INS)—While laborers gathered up wreckage left when several cars of a 72-car Wheeling and Lake Erie freight train were derailed on a curve, railroad and government officials today launched an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

War materials were scattered about and several hundred feet of track were torn up as the center section of the freight left the rails and one coal car plunged into the Sandusky river which parallels the track.

Engineer D. J. Evans of Massillon said the train was going west about 20 miles an hour as it neared Front street, the main street of Fremont. Suddenly, the center section of cars plunged from the rails and piled up at the edge of a parking lot.

A heavy object weighing several tons was thrown from one of the cars and landed a few feet from the rear of a supermarket.

No one was injured, railroad officials reported.

300 SOLDIERS PATROL PROPERTY OF STRUCK RAILROAD IN OHIO

(By International News Service)

PAINESVILLE—With a labor dispute still unsettled, 300 soldiers patrolled the property of the Fairport, Painesville and Eastern railroad today and kept the short line moving materials to and from three vital war plants.

After a lengthy conference, Maurice J. Dineen, regional director of District 50, CIO-United Mine Workers, said the dispute, involving the hiring of 30 non-union workers as train operating crews, was "nowhere near" settlemen.

L. L. Dixon, general manager of the railroad, said the company regarded the union demands as "impossible" and indicated that he and Dineen would resume their settlement conference today.

Thirty-two crew men joined in a labor "holiday" Friday and refused to operate the line. When it became apparent that the Diamond Alkali Co., the Diamond Magnesium Co., and the Industrial Rayon Corp., would have to shut down if the plants couldn't get materials, army engineers and military police were moved in and took over the operation.

A picket line was dispersed late Saturday as military guards patrolled the road's property and Mayor Eric Wilde ordered all Fairport saloons closed "for the community interest."

About 70 loaders and packers of the Diamond Alkali Co., who refused to load freight cars as long as the soldiers were operating the line, were reported back at work. Meanwhile, the army took charge of chlorine gas production at the plant.

Looking considerably thinner for their lack of food and water, two nine-month-old calves were rescued yesterday from beneath a straw stack where they had been imprisoned for five days on the J. A. Wheleer farm southeast of Shelby. Wheeler reported the calves missing last week and when officers were unable to find a trace of them, he renewed his search on the farm. Patrolman George Yoakam might have been hunting out of season yesterday, but it was strictly legal, George avers. With Lieut. Bruce Friday, he was summoned to the L. R. Yoakam stalked the cellar, driving the rodent into a window offset where it was recognized as an o'possum. While he held a sack, Friday raked the animal into it. First thought was to give the errant animal to some one who would consider it a choice morsel, but Yoakam overrode his superior officer on this idea. After failing to locate Game Warden C. I. Kimmel, George carried the possum to the north city limits yesterday evening where its freedom was restored.

AFRICA DRIVE EXPECTED TO AFFECT STAND

Representatives To Ballot on Limiting Service of Teen-Age Men.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house refused to go on record today in favor of a senate proposal that teen-age drafted soldiers be given one year of training before being sent into combat.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With America's invasion of North Africa expected to have a profound effect on the ultimate outcome, the house reconvenes today for a test vote on the senate proposal to require a year of training for 18 and 19-year-old draftees before they can be put on active combat duty.

Rep. Rankin (D) Miss., has given notice that he will move that the house accept the senate version of the legislation, thus clearing the way for a showdown on the controversial issue.

The bill was passed by the house three weeks ago without the training limitation in the measure. However, the senate subsequently adopted a provision sponsored by Sen. Lee O'Daniel (D) Tex., requiring that no youth under 20 be sent into actual combat without a preliminary training of at least 12 months.

Opening of a second front in North Africa is expected to bulwark the administration's drive for passage of the bill without any restrictions.

President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson and Gen. George Marshall, chief of staff, are vigorously opposed to the O'Daniel amendment, as are administration leaders in congress.

The army's protest against the amendment was further voiced last night when Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson warned that its adoption would weaken the army, prolong the war and cost increase loss of lives. Its passage, Patterson said, would "tell Hitler and the Japanese that while we are against them, we are not all out against them."

As Rankin prepared to make this motion, house leaders were confident that the lower branch would reject it.

Decides Soldiers Look Hungry, Gets Them 100 Pies

FAIRPORT — (U.P.) — Mrs. Mike Pohto, 50-year-old Finnish-American housewife, thought that the soldiers who are guarding the Fairport, Painesville and Eastern railroad during a labor dispute looked "pie-hungry."

So she sent Linda, her 16-year-old daughter, around the village to get 100 women to bake pies for the soldiers. The other housewives responded with the same spirit that Mrs. Pohto showed, and the boys in khaki are getting 100 apple pies today.

Mrs. Pohto has a son in the army.

"My own boy may want apple pie before the war ends, and I hope he can get it," she said.

U. S. Forces Forging Ahead In North Africa

Algiers Surrenders, Vichy Fleet Suffers Heavy Losses In Fight Off Casablanca.

The Vichy radio reported that Italian planes had attacked Gibraltar today but gave no account of the results.

Besides Algiers, which capitulated under land, sea and air attack last night at the close of the first day of the campaign, the Americans also had occupied Safi, on the Atlantic coast 140 miles south of Casablanca, and a Vichy communique acknowledged that the Algerian port of Oran, on the Mediterranean, was virtually encircled.

Casablanca, heavily bombarded, apparently was being enveloped in a similar action, but there the United States troops lacked the coastal highlands of the Mediterranean Littoral as a screen for their operations. Landings above and below Casablanca, however, put the Americans within reach of roads converging on the city.

Americans still were streaming ashore in Axis-dominated Vichy's empire and a French communique disclosed a still wider sweep to the operation with the announcement that landing forces from the American-British convoys have established holds as far south on the Atlantic coast as Agadir, 245 miles below Casablanca, and Mogador, a port 65 miles closer to the Moroccan capital.

With these landings, the American footholds in French North Africa encompass more than 1,000 miles of the coast from around the bulge of Africa, through the Strait of Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean.

Dakar, in Senegal, and Tunisia, the eastern-most domain of French North Africa, are the only major coastal areas of the empire so far exempt from the Allies' blows

"What has been accomplished is the initial landing," the headquarters spokesman asserted, however, and observers in London forecast swift occupation of the strategic cities and communication centers in an effort, dovetailed with the British Eighth army's Egyptian-Libyan drive, to sweep the Axis entirely from Africa and prepare the way for invading Europe

A Vichy communique declared that fierce fighting was progressing in French Morocco and that naval forces were engaged in the Atlantic off Casablanca, Morocco's second city.

"Our forces are endeavoring to reduce enemy landings at Safi and Fedhala and fighting is in progress at Arzew and Oran," the Vichy bulletin reported

Safi lies 140 miles south of Casablanca and Fedhala 12 miles north of that city. Arzew is on the Mediterranean 38 miles northwest of Oran, the French naval base which is itself 250 miles west of Algiers.

Mobile headquarters established by Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of the U. S. army, commander in chief of the AEF, announced that Algiers, the fortified capital of Algeria, had capitulated at 7 p. m. (3 p. m. Eastern War Time) last night with the actual occupation set for dawn today.

Allied naval forces entered the port this morning and landed American infantrymen and Roval Air Force personnel, the Vichy radio announced. It said General Eisenhower and General Voeldz, commander of the 19th French army corps, signed the formal armistice convention for Algiers.

Other forces closed in upon Oran after swift seizure of the Tafaroui air field—one of the two in the vicinity.

A Washington communique said "the lack of opposition encountered at most of the beaches" indicated that the French armed forces of North Africa "had no desire to oppose the entry of American troops."

Vichy broadcasters said the new 35,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart and four French submarines had been hit by Allied dive-bombers in early stages of the struggle and declared coastal batteries had sunk two Allied destroyers.

French reinforcements arrived in French Morocco during the night, the Vichy radio reported.

The Berlin radio said, however, that additional British naval forces had left Gibraltar, apparently escorting transports, and 55 fresh planes had flown from the rock.

Admiral Jean Darlan, British-hating chief of Vichy's armed forces, approved the capitulation of Algiers and, for a time at least, may have been a prisoner. His fate was not announced.

Less than 24 hours after the first invasion barges grounded, the government of Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval severed already tenuous relations with the United States

The action was taken despite a message of President Roosevelt to the aged marshal which said that the ultimate aim was to free France and her empire from the German yoke, this a phase in a program to "provide automatically for the security of the Americas."

Petain expressed "bewilderment and sadness," ordered French forces to resist with all their strength

London observers said the stiffest opposition in Africa probably would be put up by Darlan's navy and naval-controlled coastal batteries

If land opposition is not great, the good communication routes of Algeria should enable the Allied army to move eastward at a speed greater than that of the British eighth army in its pursuit of the remnants of Marshall Rommel's African corps westward.

With the American landings—at least 10 were reported by Vichy to have been made on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts—the Allies battle line appeared to be forming with a speed undreamed of a few weeks ago.

Skirting Spanish Morocco, the first expeditionary units—estimated by Vichy at 140,000 men—struck across the Atlantic and the Mediterranean to establish beachheads including these points.

Safi, 140 miles south of Casablanca.

Fedhala, 12 miles north of Casablanca.

Bou-Znika, 13 miles farther north

Menediya, north of Rabat, capital of French Morocco

Bou Sfer and Cape Signale, 20 miles west of Oran.

Arzew, 38 miles northeast of Oran.

Zones both east and west of Algiers, where columns of flame and smoke spiraled up from waterfront warehouses shelled by a U. S. destroyer.

Some observers here said this enterprise, synchronized with Lieut Gen B L Montgomery's knockout of Rommel's army, possibly would shorten the war by years

Allied control of the entire North African coast line, reopening the Mediterranean for shipping supplies on the short route to Egypt, India and Soviet Russia via Iran, would be the equivalent of a gain of millions of tons of shipping

Military commentators argued that a big Allied army in the Mediterranean would hasten Italy's exit from the war and put Germany under a three-cornered squeeze from hostile forces in Britain, Italy or Africa, and Russia

This prospect evidently was recognized in Rome

A commentator on the Fascist radio said "the horizon is black for Italy—we must expect attacks from any quarters"

Russians received word of the drive with jubilation. It was described on Moscow's chilly street corners as "horosho," the Soviet equivalent of "swell."

Exhorting Frenchmen of North Africa to support the American occupation forces, General Charles de Gaulle sent an appeal by radio to military forces and colonists alike to "help our Allies—join them without reserve"

Gen Henri Honore Giraud, who escaped from German imprisonment in this and the first World war, already is reported to have been stirring the flames of revolt against Vichy in North and West Africa.

Claims Axis Planes Bag Allied Cruiser

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts)—(AP)—Axis planes and submarines have sunk a cruiser and hit "various steamers" in attacks on a big British-American convoy off Algiers, the Italian high command claimed today

(The Germans made no claim to the sinking of a cruiser, reporting that Axis airmen had scored bomb hits on six Allied warships and four merchantmen and that a submarine had torpedoed a cruiser.

(There has been no confirmation from Allied sources that Italian or German forces have taken any part in the action against American and British units attacking French north and west Africa.)

Hints Attack On Spanish Morocco

NEW YORK —(INS)— Spanish troops in Spanish Morocco have received orders to be ready for an eventual Allied attack on Spanish territory the Berlin radio said today in a broadcast heard by CBS

The report came from Madrid Berlin declared There was no mention of Anglo-American assurances to Spain that no such attack would be made.

French Envoy To Ask Passport Today

WASHINGTON — (U P) — The French ambassador to the United States was expected to ask for his passport today and thus formally end Franco-American relations that date back to the American Revolutionary war

It was uncertain whether the break in relations would bring a declaration of war by Vichy against the United States The Vichy French have been fighting the British intermittently, first at Oran and more recently in Madagascar, without a declaration of war against Britain, and that may be a precedent

The French cabinet already has announced that the United States "by attacking France, broke off relations with France" Vichy radio said the American charge d'affaires, S. Pinkney Tuck, had been informed by Pierre Laval of the decision to break relations.

A diplomatic break would leave the fighting French delegation here as the sole tie between the American and French peoples.

Benjamin Franklin cemented Franco-American relations on Feb. 6, 1777, when he negotiated a treaty by which France became the first nation to recognize American independence

War Chest Commandos Start Out On $140,377 Offensive

The above photo was taken this morning a few minutes before Mansfield's Community War Chest Commandos started their offensive toward a $140,377 objective The occasion was the "zero hour" mobilization at the Madison theater which set off the three-day "blitzkrieg" by which the Commandos hope to report victory by Wednesday night.

SUPREME COURT O. K.'S PENALTY

Rules 49-Cent Wheat Charge to Be Constitutional Today.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The supreme court held constitutional today legislation imposing a 49-cent-per-bushel penalty on wheat produced and sold in excess of agricultural adjustment administration quotas

Justice Jackson delivered the opinion on a challenge of the 1941 legislation by a group of Montgomery county (Ohio) farmers The litigation was considered of far-reaching importance by the Roosevelt administration.

The legislation, passed by congress May 26, 1941, increased the penalty on the excess over AAA quotas from 15 to 49 cents per bushel and prevented the sale or use on the farm of any wheat produced until the penalty had been paid.

vasion almost as easily as to England

(Dispatches today said that American landings had been made in the environs of Casablanca, and that the port was under intense bombardment from the sea and air)

Casablanca, a Spanish name which in English means 'white house" was only a native fishing village 35 years ago but the French took it over in 1907 and soon developed it into the key port of Morocco

A flourishing European-like city of about 260 000 population whose dazzling white buildings afford a striking picture from the sea, Casablanca has been called the finest city in all North Africa

Among the city's most formidable defenses is the new 35,000-ton battleship Jean Bart which was not yet completed when the Germans occupied the shipyard at Brest in 1940. The French pulled the unfinished battleship out with its own motive power, however, and tied it up at Casablanca where it is reported to have been equipped with its powerful 15-inch rifles since the armistice But it may be no more than a floating fortress, incapable of actually going to sea to fight.

Fighting French headquarters in London has estimated that the garrison numbered no more than 4 000 men mostly colonials with French officers

Casablanca is only about 180 miles southwest of Tangier in the former international zone in Spanish Morocco Fifty miles north of Casablanca is Rabat, seat of the French administration in Morocco, and 100 miles south is the little seacoast town of Qualidia.

Three groups of islands, the Azores (Portuguese), Madeira (Portuguese) and Canaries (Spanish), afford something like a screen only a few hundred miles at sea

Technically, Morocco is an absolute monarchy with all civil and religious authority vested in the sultan, Sidi Mohammed, but under the protectorate arranged by the French in 1912 actual government is carried on by the French resident general, Gen. Auguste Nogues

The United States long has had an interested hand in the maintenance of peace in Morocco The United States sent representatives to the Algeciras conference in 1906 which by its Moroccan resolution smoothed over the colonial rivalries of Germany, France and other European powers.

And it was against the barbary pirates, who inhabited the coast from Casablanca to Tripoli, that the then young United States sent naval squadrons in 1801, 1802 and 1804 and another led by Stephen Decatur in 1815 The United States was the first to check the power of these pirates and to refuse their demands for tribute.

SEATTLE —(U P)— City officials estimated from $5,000 to $6,000 would be spent in complying with recent orders which imposed further dimout restrictions along the Pacific coast. Light Superintendent Eugene R. Hoffman said that cost would include clipping 13,000 cardboard hoods for ornamental street lights

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1942.

Canton is the latest Ohio city to exceed it's war chest goal —which emphasizes the CAN in Canton.

The least that can be expected of them is that those who failed to vote will not complain about the results.

It seemed strange to hear that Brazil burned some of its coffee—until the shortage brought onto the market some of the sort that, under ordinary conditions, might better have been burned.

United Nations Ready for Offensive

BIGGEST, and most encouraging military movement thus far made by United States forces is the landing of an expeditionary army in Africa, fully equipped and in readiness to co-operate with the British in driving the Axis off of that continent.

An important revelation, in connection with this move, is that America is now ready to join with other of the United Nations in aggressive warfare and that the defensive stage of action against Hitler in the European, African, Russian and Mediterranean theaters of war has ended.

Entry into French possessions in Africa will be understood by all loyal Frenchmen as an action in their behalf, and whatever may be thought of it by Laval and his coterie of Axis hirelings in Vichy, the real France will now have brightened hopes of eventual restoration of freedom and independence.

Interpreted by some as the long anticipated "second front," designed for relief of pressure on Russia, it is not important at the moment whether this is designated as a second front or considered merely a step in the direction of later invasion of Europe from the north, west or south.

A gratifying phase of the African offensive is its close co-ordination with General Montgomery's successful push against Rommel's forces in Egypt, with consequent lessening of possibility that sufficient reinforcements and supplies can reach the retreating Germans and Italians in time to prevent utter rout.

While war news has brightened insofar as action against Germany and Italy is concerned, little encouragement is found in the Far Eastern part of the picture and the situation in the Solomons continues critical, with appearance of insufficient Allied strength to justify hope of quick decision of the issue.

What seems most vital just now is that the full fighting strength of the United States, in manpower and implements of warfare, be developed as rapidly as possible, so that hard won advantages may not be lost by overconfidence or lack of whole-hearted co-operation on the part of all Americans

Heavy Drain On Iron Ore Deposits

PRODUCTION of iron ore continues to be one of the most impressive features of this war. It is pouring from the Lake Superior district at the incredible rate of 100,000,000 tons a year.

Fortunately the Superior deposits of accessible, high-grade ore are ample for this war. But they are not inexhaustible. At the present rate of production the best ores are expected to run out in six or seven years. Plenty of low-grade ore will be left, there and elsewhere in the country, but probably never again will there be so vast a deposit to use for so crucial a purpose.

It is obviously necessary to find metal substitutes for iron as rapidly as possible. They will be found in the lighter metals, aluminum, magnesium and various others, whose ores are found liberally in North and South America, but are not available yet in adequate quantities. They are the metals most needed for aerial use in war and peace, and will probably be the important metals of the future.

They Are All Americans!

READING over lists of men entering the fighting forces, many people must be surprised. To anyone who hasn't become used to it, the names present an incredible mixture. This is true especially in large industrial cities which drew their citizens so largely from Old World countries before immigration laws were tightened. In many cases there are almost solid columns of names with which the older citizens are not familiar, and which they have no idea how to pronounce.

But if the names look and sound queer, the men do not. At least, this is true of the younger generation, nearly all of whom were born here, and have grown up in typical American schools. They speak the same vernacular, use the same slang, and usually the same tones as the older Americans they have grown up with. They have played the same games, lived the same lives, thought pretty much the same thoughts. There may be more in climate, environment and human association than some people think.

Prevarication As a Fine Art

LYING for material advantage has generally been classed among the vices, and properly discouraged. Lying as a form of fine art is something else again. For years the dateline of Winsted, Conn., was the signal to newspaper editors and readers to look out for marvellous happenings in the animal world—dogs that retrieved the wind-blown morning paper, and refolded it properly, and other marvels.

One organization that has had a praiseworthy end in view is the Liars' Club of Burlington, Ia. Formerly reserved for gifted amateurs, it has now opened its doors to the professional. Since among all the professional liars no one has reached a higher pinnacle of falsehood that the Nazi propagandist, Goebbels, the club has awarded to him its first medal. This consists of a pie-plate with two x's, the sign of the Order of the Double Cross. As Dr. Goebbels was unavoidably prevented from accepting the award in person, it was made to a phonograph. The phonograph is the vehicle for the voice of some one else, and so is Goebbels.

Certainly no more colossal liar has appeared in recent times. It is quite ~~proper~~ to have the fact recognized and recorded.

It's fortunate that the position of director of war information isn't an elective office as Elmer Davis doesn't seem to be able to please the army, the navy or the public.

It was Robert Quillen who thought to explain: "A woman is a person who has great faith in a medicine if a woman friend has an aunt who took it and got well."

Hitler is reported ready to freeze his army in Russia in its present position through the winter—in which the weather will doubtless be helpful.

A NEW MAN IN THE LOADING DEPARTMENT

Pearl Harbor Factor In Election

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Failure to fix responsibility for Pearl Harbor is the most generally accepted explanation, among Washington politicians, for the Democrats, heavy losses in congressional seats in the election the other day.

Democratic candidates themselves complained about it in undertones while the campaign was still on. Their theory was, and is yet, that there ought to have been an above-board investigation to determine just who was to blame for the fashion in which our forces were taken by surprise when the Japs initially attacked us. Frankly admitting it would have been disagreeable, certainly, it would have been something of a restorative to public confidence. As the matter stood, nothing very definite has been generally known and the suspicion has quite widely prevailed that more mismanagement is yet to be reckoned with.

Re-elected Democrats, to be sure, try to take an optimistic view of the situation. Their proposition is that their congressional majorities heretofore have been topheavy to the point of being unwieldy, and that their new organization will be more effective than the passing one, because more compact.

This may be a fact, but it's a fact likewise that the G.O.P. now will have a working minority, which it hasn't had hitherto (too weak) under the current administration

Jolt to F. D. R.

Anyhow, whatever the result may have signified, as between the two big parties, it was a severe jolt for President Roosevelt personally.

Republicans and Democrats alike are waiting interestedly to learn his reaction to it. One school of thought is that he'll subside as a strongly dominant executive. Another is that he's the type who'll turn fiercer than ever in the face of apparent opposition.

The war isn't much of an issue, except as concerns strategy.

That is to say, the rival parties' spokesmen differ more or less relative to methods of prosecuting it most vigorously, but they concur 100 per cent relative to the urgency of the utmost vigor. Technique is the only question they're apt to disagree on—as between Pearl Harbor and later developments, for instance.

It's with the future in mind that they'll argue.

They won't be so altogether, partisanly, either.

We're too much absorbed in the conflict today to worry over the New Deal's post-war status. Nevertheless, in voting, New Deal "pros" and "antis" unquestionably do figure pro and con on into the hereafter.

But they split non-partisanly.

There are New Deal Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats.

These New Deal "pros" and "antis" undeniably were considerably influenced, in their Nov. 3 voting by their economic preferences, as well as by war considerations.

New Deal Setback.

From the count of the ballots it would appear that the New Deal had suffered a severe setback.

It's the war that counts momentarily.

We'll win that, naturally. We've GOT to.

But then what?

To an extent, I surmise that that was what the electorate figured on as a post-war prospect. I wouldn't have supposed that they'd have looked that far ahead.

But they did, seemingly.

Heaven knows what shape the war'll be in, in 1944.

Its status will have a lot to do with America's later history, however.

If it's still going, it'll be a corking factor at the polls, if we HAVE 'em.

Some say we shan't have anything but a dictatorship, minus elections, if the world muss is still going by that time.

If we DO, Franklin D.'ll continue to be "it," it's a safe conclusion. If not, it'll be somebody like Henry A. Wallace, to whom he's willed his authority.

BUT!

How about this last election?

Nix on Double Talk!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M MAD! So mad my fingers strike sparks when I hit the keys. And heart-sick, too, beyond the telling. For I'm writing this on October 27 and, for the last 24 hours, I've been listening to the truth about our position in the Solomon islands and other Pacific skirmishes, the truth which has been kept from us for so many months and which is being released only slowly at the time I write.

There's only one thing more tragic than the broken young bodies which sprawl along Guadalcanal beach and that is the broken faith which Washington was supposed to keep with their folks at home, but didn't.

The news coming in now was known in Washington in August and September. But only today do we learn it, while we're sealing our overseas Christmas packages with high hearts.

During all these weeks we have been buoyed up by false hopes. We have been told our Pacific fighters were invincible. We've been led to believe that "Jimmy" Doolittle's flyers emerged unscathed from their raid on Tokyo. We have been told that we Americans knew all the angles and that the Japs were braggart, blundering fighters, blinded by their own fanaticism. Now, little by little, the truth emerges. Not merely the truth about our resolute foe, but the far more bitter truth about our own national deception . . . about the organized double-talk which has deluded us all.

This double-talk will not only mean heartbreak in thousands of homes; it will mean doubt and distrust. A free and loyal people can stand danger. They can stand failure. But they cannot and will not stand the betrayal of their faith by their own leaders. They support the government. They make the fundamental sacrifices for it. And they expect to be told the truth about the outcome.

If the outcome is bad, and they are told promptly and honestly how bad it is, they can take that, too. But they will not be brushed off by political piffle or policy propaganda. And heaven help the man or group of men who takes them for a shell-game when their very hearts are involved!

Inevitably this deception will be blamed on the press. A fact which our national censors cannily considered but which should, at last, be blitzed as it deserves. The American press is not to blame for the blanking of facts. There is not an honorable editor or writer on any reputable paper in these United States who does not long to tell the public what is happening, and when and how it happened.

Ironically, the actual facts are often known to these very editors and writers but they cannot print them. Despite the theory of "free press" they are shackled . . . shackled by something sterner than a federal law . . . by an appeal to "their sense of honor." So, in bitter loyalty, they remain silent when all their decency and intelligence prompts them to tell the public the truth.

We are today facing one of the greatest perils America has ever encountered. It is not the peril of German butchery, Italian weakness or Japanese treachery and power. I is the peril engendered by our own doubt . . . a doubt which has been created because Washington seat-warmers do not know the character and caliber of America's people.

There is just one thing that America wants and vitally needs today and that is—the truth. America can take it! There is just one thing that will destroy and demoralize America today and that is—double talk.

GIVE AMERICA THE TRUTH AND OUR STRIKES WILL STOP. TELL AMERICA THE GRIM FACTS AND AMERICA WILL FIGHT FOR ITSELF AND ITS ALLIES AS NEVER A NATION HAS FOUGHT. BUT KEEP ON HANDING OUT THESE PHONEY LOLLIPOPS AND THE AXIS WILL HAVE OUR PANTS. GENTLEMEN, AND I DON'T MEAN MAYBE.

Interpreting the War News

Confident Russia Enters Second Quarter Century of Soviet Setup

—By GLENN BABB

THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE have just celebrated the quarter-century anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution, an event which history may show to have left a more lasting imprint than any other of recent times. To a considerable portion of humanity it is the mightiest occurrence not merely of these times but of all time.

Anniversaries invite comparisons. Joseph Stalin compared Russia's war situation of a generation ago with that of today to show how, at the moment, the Russian armies face the most formidable foe they have known.

But the differences between the Russian situation of today and that of 1917, or rather between the character of the Russian nation of 1942 and that of 1917, form one of the brightest features, perhaps the most heartening of all, in the prospects of the United Nations.

The generation doing most of the fighting in this war is too young to remember the feeling of doom that settled over the Allies of that other war when the Bolshevists took over in 1917. The weakness and incapacity of the first revolutionaries, following upon the evils and misfortunes of the czarist regime, had brought Russia to a tragic plight.

A few months later came the peace the Allies had dreaded, the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, signed March 3, 1918, which opened the Ukraine and Caucasus to the Germans. Russia dropped out of the war. The second front of that day had collapsed.

WHAT a difference in the 25-year-old Soviet Russia of 1942! In Stalin's speech and in his order of the day there is assurance repeated many times that Russia, now bearing the brunt, is in the war against "that cannibal Hitler" to the end.

If there is a note of reproach in the long passage on the absence of a second front, if there is the implication that Rommel's defeat is not enough—the aside remark that only 15 Axis divisions are contained in Egypt as against 240 in Russia—there is also a ringing, almost exultant, expression of confidence in the steadfastness and power of the "Anglo-Soviet-American coalition" and in victory.

Not only will there be a second front, says Stalin, because the Allies know that without it things "may end badly for all freedom loving peoples," but "the day is not far off when the enemy will feel the force of new blows of the Red army."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(First of two articles on housing in Washington.)

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of talk and much kidding, through cartoons and stories, about crowded conditions in Washington.

There is the one about the fellow who spent several nights practicing sleeping in the crotch of a tree because he had to go to Washington on business. One of the biggest unintentional laugh lines ever written was that in a play which turned up at the National theater. The wife said to her husband: "I will run down to Washington a couple of days ahead and find us a house to live in." At the National, it caused guffaws that stopped the show dead night after night.

IN THE last few days, some figures have been issued which give all the stories authenticity. John A. Nolen, jr., a director of the National Capital Park and Planning commission, announced that the Washington metropolitan area now has approximately 1,260,000 persons, compared with 908,000 when the official census was taken April 1, 1940. That's a growth of more than 33⅓ per cent in two and a half years, a staggering expansion with which no city of any size could cope without herculean effort — the kind of effort in which the District of Columbia's unwieldy "city government" is woefully lacking.

Nolen's breakdown of these figures is more enlightening. In the District itself, the population is now 850,000, compared with 663,000 in the last census. The Maryland suburbs now have 225,000, compared with 163,000; and the Virginia suburbs 185,000, compared to 108,000.

In other words, more than half of Washington's growth has been within the comparatively narrow confines of the District. And by next July, according to the Civil Service commission, the government will have hired 39,000 additional workers in the District.

When it is considered that the total of government workers here now (in spite of "decentralization" that has resulted in moving about 30,000 to other cities) is something over 275,000, the percentage increase makes it apparent that crowded conditions haven't caused nearly as much grief as they are going to.

FINDING this manpower has been and continues to be one of the government's biggest headaches. The minimum age limit, once so important in the civil service application blanks has virtually disappeared and boys and girls of 16 are finding themselves called to report for duty at starting salaries ranging from $1,240 to $1,440 a year.

Government officials admit all this makes for impaired efficiency, but the opinion generally is: "The problem is to get the job done as fast as we can and personnel and manpower experts are just about agreed there is no other way."

Man About Manhattan

Helped by Height

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Anne Francine, who is one of the prettiest girls you ever saw, is five feet and ten inches tall. Yet she wears three-inch heels. I asked her why.

"Because I like them," Anne said. "They're comfortable."

Add three inches to the height of a girl who is five feet ten and you have someone to look up to. I mean, you have to admire the girl, knowing that her height isn't helping her career any. An exceptionally pretty girl who is exceptionally tall is out of luck, so far as the movies are concerned. Some of the movie heroes are of unheroic proportions; frankly, a bit on the runty side. On the set they wear built-up shoes and the girls are in their stocking feet, just to bamboozle the public.

All of that might be tragedy to Anne, who has auburn hair and dark brown eyes, except that she happens to be a singer, at Armando's. A torch singer who doesn't need or use a micraphone, which is unusual. And I wouldn't say her beauty is wasted. I would as soon watch Anne sing as listen.

I MENTION Anne Francine not alone because of her height and attractiveness but because of her Philadelphia "main line" background. At Chatham Hall school, in Chatham, Va., she was president of the Dramatic club and put on new plays every two weeks. She was so successful that her classmates went batty over dramatics. The teachers revolted and the Dramatic club was shut down until Anne graduated.

Anne returned to Philadelphia for her debutante season, but two years later got tired of idleness and came to New York. She won a singing contest for society debs and got a contract which led to night club jobs. Her family disapproved, but Anne went so far as to return to Philadelphia where she broke attendance records at the Embassy club. She still is interested in dramatics, having had a leading part in a short-lived tour of "Too Many Girls," and has staged several shows for the benefit of a children's convalescent home.

EVERY now and then a play comes along which adds a new word of phrase to our vocabulary. One of these is "Papa Is All." The word "all" means—well, it means "ain't." For the expressive idiomatic word you can thank the Pennsylvania Dutch, about whom the play is written. You can thank in particular Jessie Royce Landis, the star in the Broadway production of last season and in the current road company.

The title (and use of the word) comes from an automobile trip taken by Papa. The car was hit by a train at a crossing, after which Papa just wasn't any more. He was "all"—hat, clothes, flesh, everything.

Dressing for Comfort.

Fuel saving, another wartime necessity, will result in many homes and offices being less comfortable than usual this winter. It will take some time to become adjusted to this change, as most of us are so used to adequate heat, anything below normal will be regarded as a hardship.

The adjustment will call for warmer clothing, and we will begin to understand why heavy wraps were worn by everyone in the days before the advent of modern heating systems. While we do not anticipate a return to the fascinating era of ankles made lumpy by long underwear, and red flannels showing from beneath shirt cuffs, but doubtless there will be some deviation from the present dressing habits as the public goes in for walking and has to do considerable waiting on corners for transportation.—Ohio State Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Junior Partner

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS seven in the morning when I saw a slender farm boy —about 12, perhaps—bring up the cattle from the pasture. He was warmly dressed, but he hustled the herd along, as though he might be cold. His shoes were wet and icy fringes were about the lower edges of his overalls. He had bright eyes and glowing cheeks, and I liked him so much that I stopped to talk—as older men will.

"How many cows do you milk?" I asked, as the last one tripped through the gate.

"Six," he told me, shyly. "Dad milks ten, mostly—he's in there feeding 'em."

"Why are you in such a hurry?"

"Our time is limited now. I help with this before the school bus comes and feed the hogs and the young heifer calves. We have thirty hogs to turn off by Thanksgiving, and 40 more for New Year's. Won't you come in the stable, then I can talk while I'm milking and save time?"

I smiled at his business-like way, and followed him inside. "What will your hogs weigh?" I wondered.

"They'll average around 250. We figure on 'em gainin' two pounds a day. Eight bushels of corn and the right kind of supplement oughta make 100 pounds of pork. When they're on good clover and alfalfa pasture, they won't need that much.

"Dad weighs out the cows' rations morning and evening. I made a chart at school with each cow's name on it. The heavy milkers get more feed than the others—and still look more bony."

"What do you feed the calves?" I asked.

"Warm skimmed milk, right from the separator, and calf meal in it. All ten have done well. They're Guernseys and we breed 'em by the time they're a year old to that registered bull back there.

"He's been at the head of our herd for two years. Another farmer up the road has one just as good. My dad and he are going to trade, next year, so there won't be too much inbreeding. They exchanged bucks and boars last fall—it's a good way to keep the best stock on the farm.

"Next spring, if I work real well, Dad says he'll write up a contract, and make me a junior partner of his. Then I'll have a share in the hogs, the sheep and the milk check. I don't know just what share mine'll be—but my Dad'll be fair. We get a big kick out of planning together how to do the work, and what we'll plant in each field. Come over sometime next summer,' he added as I was leaving, "my dad'll be glad to show you around, if I'm busy."
